John,

As per our conversation with Ian Little. Transocean is satisfied that we can start up operations safely. We have run through the outstanding audit items and have either closed them out or have robust mitigation measures in place. You will see from the attached list that we still have some work to do on the pumps but we have closed out many of the issues. I also plan to provide to you a weekly update to track our progress to ensure a timely resolution.

The rig is currently updating the mitigation measures and adding the final comments to the MOC

I would like to thank you again for your assistance.

Regards
Paul
