Paul,

I just spoke with Tony. Dave Wall is heading to Houston tomorrow. The thought is to pull together a team to look into the process safety side of it and then do some modeling. I volunteered to support the initial PS discussions and use the data from there to support modeling work. I shared our thoughts on modeling resources. Tony said to keep the cell nearby this weekend but actually expects Dave will be contacting me on Monday.

Thanks,

Cheryl

Cheryl

Ok its now time for process safety to get involved. Could you call me. If I am unable to be reached please contact Tony Brock (who is leading the investigation) as soon as possible and also let me know that you've got this message and made contact (or not).

Thanks

Paul

Paul,

FYI - Tom is a very experienced Process Safety Engineering who works with BakerRisk (my previous employer). They have teamed up with Wild Well Control and are offering support. BakerRisk assisted in the

Cheryl:

I know you must be very busy and realize BP will try to stay in the background but just wanted you to know that I got a call from a buddy at Superior Energy Services ((www.superiorenergy.com) now owns Wild Well Control). BakerRisk (me) had joined forces in the past under an alliance w/ them to do a barge incident investigation. Please keep us in mind if you need any help. BakerRisk and Superior Energy really complement each other very well. Take care of yourself;
