

What is a Pressure Integrity Test or Shoe Test

A shoe test is a pressure test in which pressure is applied to a short section of new hole drilled below the bottom of the casing to verify that mud of a specified density cannot leak through the cemented annulus nor fracture the rock to provide a leak path around the bottom of the casing.

