

Summary of Opinions

- No technical engineering basis to challenge long string
- Both design options reviewed by BP were appropriate
- Long string production casing design has some advantages for long-term integrity
- Long string production casing is common and accepted in industry for deepwater wells in the Gulf of Mexico
- The production casing was sufficiently strong to withstand worst-case loads that the production casing would see under any scenario